This MD class is composed of 69.9% women and 31% underrepresented minorities, and 90% of the class members are nontraditional (they were out of college for at least a year before entering medical school).

In 2022, the pass rate for first-time takers of step 1 of the National Board Exam (testing basic science knowledge and skills) was 91%.

The school has 592 medical students and trains 1,388 residents and fellows in 115 accredited programs. It has 92 MD/PhD students, with 25 of those funded through NIH training grant lines. Some of these students are in a joint program with Georgia Tech, with which the medical school shares a biomedical engineering department ranked #2 in the country by US News & World Report. The medical school also offers a joint MD/MSCR (master’s in clinical research) degree, an MD/MPH degree with the Rollins School of Public Health, and an MD/MA in bioethics with the Laney Graduate School. Dual programs with law (juris master) and business (MBA) also are available. Training predoctoral bioscience researchers in eight programs in the Graduate Division of Biological and Biomedical Sciences in the graduate school are 168 medical faculty.

Faculty in five allied health programs train 497 students. These include physician assistant (PA) and physical therapy (PT) programs ranked #5 and #8 respectively in the nation by US News & World Report. The allied health programs also include the Anesthesiologist Assistant (AA) program, Genetic Counseling Training program, and Medical Imaging program.

Medical school faculty received $588.4 million in sponsored research funding from the NIH in FY 2022. The school is also # 3 among all nursing schools in NIH research funding and has been named a Center of Excellence by the National League for Nursing.

In addition to the traditional BSN program, the school offers an accelerated BSN program for distance learners, and its MN Pathway to MSN program provides a fast track to becoming an advanced practice nurse or midwife.

The school's MSN, DNP, and post-graduate certificate programs include specialties in adult/gerontology, nurse anesthesia, nurse midwifery, pediatrics, psychiatric mental health, womens/gender-related studies, and emergency, family, and neonatal care. Students can also combine knowledge across disciplines through dual degree options in bioethics and public health.

The school's PhD program is built on research strengths in artificial intelligence (AI), cancer, cardiovascular disease, data science, environmental health, HIV/AIDS, maternal-child health, neurodegenerative disease, palliative care, and women's health. In FY 2022, the school received more than $24 million in research funding from all sources.

A distance-based master's program, the Executive MPH, allows professionals to pursue a degree while employed.

The school ranks # 8 nationally in NIH funding, receiving more than $126 million in FY 2022. These funds support efforts in cancer prevention, cardiovascular epidemiology, nutrition, climate change, substance abuse disorders, environmental health, HIV/AIDS, maternal and child health, social determinants of health, safe water, tobacco control, mental health, addictive behaviors, injury and violence, antibiotic resistance, diabetes and obesity, and health services.

Many of the 200 full- and part-time faculty and 340 adjunct faculty in six academic departments are linked by appointments, shared programs, or research grants with CDC, The Carter Center, the American Cancer Society, CARE, Arthritis Foundation, Task Force for Global Health, and state and local public health agencies. Through these partnerships and as a center for international health research and training, the school helps make Atlanta a worldwide destination for public health. It is ranked #4 among peer institutions by US News & World Report and has 12,194 alumni.

Emory National Primate Research Center (founded 1930)

R. Paul Johnson, MD, Director

enprc.emory.edu

Dedicated to discovering causes, preventions, treatments, and cures of disease, Emory National Primate Research Center (NPRC) is improving human and animal health and lives worldwide. One of seven NPRCs funded by the NIH, the primate center conducts studies that make breakthrough discoveries possible. Research involves approximately 1,000 nonhuman primates at its main center on the Emory campus and another 2,400 at its field station in Lawrenceville, Georgia. The center also has approximately 5,000 rodents in its research vivaria.

The Emory NPRC has 427 staff members, 67 faculty scientists, 32 faculty in residence, and 46 postdoctoral fellows. Its research is grounded in scientific integrity; expert knowledge; respect for colleagues; commitment to diversity; an open exchange of ideas; and compassionate, quality animal care. Supported by $155.6 million in research funding (all sources) in FY 2022, Emory NPRC researchers are making discoveries in microbiology and immunology; neurologic diseases; neuropharmacology; behavioral, cognitive, and developmental neuroscience; and psychiatric disorders. The center advances vaccine development for infectious and noninfectious diseases, paves the way for earlier diagnosis of and new treatments for illnesses such as Alzheimer's and Parkinson's, defines the neurobiology and genetics of social behavior to support new therapies for autism spectrum and other disorders as well as drug addiction, and teaches us how interactions between genetics and environment shape who we are.

The center follows regulations and guidelines established by the NIH, the US Department of Agriculture, and more. Since 1984, Emory NPRC has been fully accredited by AAALAC International, the gold seal of approval for laboratory animal care.

Winship Cancer Institute (founded 1937)

Suresh S. Ramalingam, MD, Executive Director

winshipcancer.emory.edu

As the only National Cancer Institute (NCI)-Designated Comprehensive Cancer Center for the state of Georgia and one of only 53 in the country, Winship Cancer Institute of Emory University discovers and develops novel and highly effective approaches to cancer prevention, detection, diagnosis, and treatment.

Winship has more than 500 faculty members conducting cancer research; they received $90 million in cancer research funding in 2022, with $40 million from the NCI. Faculty include investigators from various units across Emory, Georgia Tech, and regional partner institutions. Winship researchers are supported by numerous national team science grants that focus on high-priority cancers impacting Georgians, and they have the distinction of holding both an NCI Specialized Program of Research Excellence grant and an NCI Po1 program project grant in lung cancer.

Winship physicians provide comprehensive, advanced care at eight Emory Healthcare locations and three affiliated sites. In 2022, Winship opened the Rollins Immediate Care Center, the first center in Georgia to provide acute care for patients experiencing cancer-related symptoms that require immediate medical attention. A 17-story, full-service inpatient and outpatient cancer care tower, Winship at Emory Midtown, will open in May 2023 and deliver personalized, patient-centered cancer care integrated with innovative cancer research. In addition to transforming cancer care delivery, Winship works to better predict and prevent cancer as well as to provide survivorship support services such as integrated complementary therapies.

In 2022, more than 900 patients enrolled in therapeutic treatment clinical trials at Winship. It has the largest unit in Georgia for Phase I clinical trials—a critical first step for introducing new therapies against cancer. Winship is one of 30 inaugural US cancer centers selected as a Lead Academic Participating Site for the NCI National Clinical Trials Network, NCI's primary infrastructure to conduct Phase I and II clinical trials. Winship also serves patients through the Winship Cancer Network, a partnership with community hospitals enhancing access to research and treatment (see page 8).

Through its Office of Community Outreach and Engagement, Winship facilitates research and disseminates evidence-based interventions in Georgia with the goal of reducing health disparities and the cancer burden across the state. Winship also provides comprehensive, cancer-focused training and education opportunities across the continuum of learners, starting in middle school and spanning undergraduate, graduate, postdoctoral, and career-development programs.

- The Atlanta VA Health Care System (VAHCS) is part of the VA Southeast Network, VISN 7. In FY 2022, 301 Emory clinicians practiced at the VAHCS, the largest tertiary VA facility in Georgia, with 22 sites of care. It provides highly specialized care for veterans, including open heart surgery and cancer therapies. The tertiary medical facility is a Level 1A facility with a total of 363 authorized beds that include 133 internal medicine beds, 78 community living center beds, 88 psychiatry beds, 52 surgery beds, and 12 compensated work therapy beds. FY 2022 total admissions were 7,171, and there were over 1.4 million outpatient service visits.
- Children's Healthcare of Atlanta
 - Children's at Egleston, 330 beds (Emory campus). Annual patient totals: 11,738 admissions and 325,831 outpatient service visits. Emory clinicians provide over 90% of care.
 - Children's at Hughes Spalding, 24 beds (Grady Hospital campus). Annual patient totals: 894 admissions and 87,284 outpatient service visits. Staffed by 64 Emory physicians and by private practice physicians, with Emory clinicians providing more than 75% of care.

Staffed by 834 Emory physician faculty and 145 advanced practice providers; in addition, 409 Emory residents and fellows provide care at Grady under supervision of the faculty. Together, these Emory physicians provide about 80% of care at Grady, with the other 20% provided by Morehouse School of Medicine and Grady-employed physicians.

Additional Partners in Patient Care, Research, and Teaching

- Georgia Clinical & Translational Science Alliance (Georgia CTSA)
Emory is the lead partner in the Georgia CTSA, an NIH-funded consortium created to translate laboratory discoveries into treatments for patients, engage communities in clinical research efforts, and train clinical investigators.
- Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)
Emory and the CDC have a number of research contracts and consulting partnerships. Emory University Hospital's Serious Communicable Diseases Unit, where the first patients in the US with Ebola virus disease were treated, was built in collaboration with the CDC. Emory faculty serve as advisers on public health committees throughout the CDC, and CDC officers frequently serve as adjunct faculty in Emory's schools of public health and medicine.
- Georgia Center for Oncology Research and Education (Georgia CORE)
Winship Cancer Institute works with Georgia CORE to partner with community-based physicians to make more clinical trials of new cancer treatments available to patients throughout the state.
- Georgia Institute of Technology
Emory and Georgia Tech share a joint biomedical engineering department ranked #2 in the nation by US News & World Report. They also collaborate in nanotechnology, vaccine delivery, clean air and water, health services research, regenerative medicine, bioinformatics, neurosciences, pediatrics, medical devices, immunoengineering, robotics, and design of "smart" equipment and facilities to help the elderly and disabled.
- Georgia Research Alliance (GRA)
The GRA is a partnership of business, research universities, and state government established to build a technology-driven economy fueled by breakthrough university research. Through it, the state invests in Emory eminent scholars and research in nanotechnology, cancer, pediatrics, new drug screenings, vaccines, AIDS and other infectious diseases, immunology, transplantation, clinical trials, bioinformatics, autism, imaging, cystic fibrosis, addiction, obesity, and Alzheimer's disease.
- Morehouse School of Medicine
Emory's School of Medicine partners with Morehouse in serving patients at Grady Memorial Hospital (see above) and in training Morehouse residents. The two schools also partner in research through the Georgia CTSA (above) and other research initiatives.
- University of Georgia (UGA)
The schools collaborate in the NIH-sponsored Emory-UGA Center of Excellence for Influenza Research, a national network to improve pandemic preparedness.

Emory, Georgia Tech, and UGA are partners in the Regenerative Engineering and Medicine Center, focused on harnessing the body's potential to heal.

Woodruff Health Sciences Center (WHSC) Highlights and Impact

- Jobs: With 32,003 employees, the WHSC helps make Emory the largest employer in metro Atlanta.
- Economic impact: With $7.03 billion in operating expenditures in FY 2022, the WHSC's annual economic impact on metro Atlanta is $13.74 billion.
- Groundbreaking investments: In 2018, the Robert W. Woodruff Foundation pledged $400 million to fund a new Winship Cancer Institute facility on the Emory University Hospital Midtown campus and a new 350,000-square-foot Health Sciences Research Building (HSRB II) on the Atlanta campus. Winship at Emory Midtown, slated to welcome patients in spring 2023, will deliver personalized cancer care aligned with Winship's innovative cancer research. HSRB II, also due to open in spring 2023, will be a state-of-the-art research facility designed to optimize innovation, synergy, and impact for biomedical research. The R. Randall Rollins Building, an 10-story, 185,000-square-foot facility, opened in fall 2022 and significantly expanded the Rollins School of Public Health complex, providing new learning, training, and conferencing space. The Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing opened its new Emory Nursing Learning Center (ENLC) in fall 2022. The $20.6 million, 70,000-square-foot ENLC features state-of-the-art simulation and professional development space designed to prepare students to engage in interactive technology and experiential learning activities.
- Clinical trials: More than any other Georgia institution, Emory has 25,955 participants enrolled in 2,031 clinical trials of drugs, devices, and procedures.
- Technology transfer: Emory currently manages more than 1,800 technologies, which has led to the formation of 130 companies and more than 65 new products in the marketplace, some of which—like the discovery of several HIV drugs—have offered major health and societal benefit. Since FY 2000, the university has filed more than 3,900 patent applications and been issued more than 600 US patents. In that time, Emory has executed more than 800 license agreements, resulting in more than $884 million in licensing revenue, thereby creating additional funding for new and ongoing research.
- Research dollars: The WHSC received $899.5 million in NIH-sponsored research funds in FY 2022, reflecting 95.2% of the total of $944.5 million awarded to Emory.
- Drug discovery: Building on its longstanding success in drug discovery, including the development of molnupiravir to treat COVID-19, researchers at Emory and Georgia State University received $52 million in federal funding to establish a groundbreaking new drug development center aimed at preventing the next pandemic.
- Physician workforce: Emory's medical school provides more than half of the residency training positions in Georgia; 59 of the medical school's 115 residency programs are the only such programs in the state.
- Philanthropy: In FY 2022, the WHSC was awarded $379.4 million in private support from individuals, foundations, and corporations.
